

Information & Systems Security Society

2018-2019 Sponsorship Guide

INFORMATION &
SYSTEMS SECURITY SOCIETY

The Information and Systems Security Society (ISSS) is a student run Computer Science organization at the University of Texas at Austin dedicated towards instructing students on the topics of computer security. Through our organization's events, students are given exposure to both practical and theoretical attacks on real world systems, encouraging students to write better code, design better infrastructure, and defend their privacy and digital freedom in an increasingly connected world.